1	It's unfortunate that voters have voted for climate inaction for so long, but for those who now want our climate emergency to be addressed, please be aware that Fusion is the most committed. All options are on the table for us, even geo-engineering.	9/29/2024 8:06 PM

5	We are at an inflexion point in the energy market in Australia. The community need new messages about what their governments should, and can, do to address Climate Change. It is particularly concerning that many young people see the "Climate Crisis" as such an existential challenge that change is not possible and that their futures are out of their hands. Rather than motivating young people, the debate has scared young people into inaction.	9/19/2024 10:11 PM
6	This was a massive amount of information to work through. Clearly a lot of thought and attention has been given to these important questions. Professionally as an ecological researcher, many of these topics have been revelant to climate change mitigation for biodiversity conservation, including in urban environments. On council, I will use my experience and expertise to integrate climate solutions wherever posisble.	9/19/2024 8:13 PM
7	Actions need to be real and effective rather than purely ideological. After many years of supposed green councillors we still face the same issues as there has been a lot of talk for brownie points but little effective management and action	9/19/2024 6:15 PM

10	We can do more regarding the creeks and water quality by investing in more water sensitive designs.	9/17/2024 10:05 AM
11	It is important that council takes real action slow down and/or stop climate change and not just do the glossy and superficial things.	9/16/2024 2:37 PM
12	Glad that there are members of the community out there who are fighting for climate action and sustainable practices at the local gov. level. If I'm elected, I'll work with residents on the ground to build campaigns to support change at all levels of government for a climate-friendly world and justice for all.	9/15/2024 12:39 PM
13	The new council needs to show each other a bit of respect and understand that it's a big diverse city and we have very different needs and expectations. I'm feeling optimistic about the future.	9/14/2024 5:15 PM
